How to Raise a Reader

Start at the very beginning. Begin reading to your child the same week they are born.

Put books around the house. All kinds, and keep them within easy reach of small people's hands.

Be a reader to grow a reader. Especially when they are young and impressionable your child will value what you value.

Take your kids to the local library's storytimes. Our library has pre-school storytime on Friday morning during non-pandemic times!

Ask a librarian for age appropriate recommendations. We have some ideas!

Put limits on screen time. In limiting screen time, you make it necessary for your child to problem solve and find something else to do to.

Make storytime non-negotiable. Set a time, and read every day.

As soon as your child can write their name, get a library card. It will give your child access, ownership and ability.

Let them choose — most of the time.

Encourage your child to go to their school's library. The more libraries involved in a child's life, the better.

Now Showing

Going to the movies has always been a special treat. But how long has it been since you've seen a movie in a theater? Theaters have been closed since last spring, and who knows when they will be open again. Well, here's an idea. Weston Library has 347 movies in our local collection. And the Sage Library System has a whopping 4,838 movie titles in the 74 libraries with which we share borrowing privileges. Titles can be searched and holds placed through the catalog. Or if you prefer, call the library and I'll place a hold for you. Movies check out for one week, and can be renewed.
